

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Covers for attic trap doors and pull down attic stairs or ladders which are formed of insulating material which is sealed with a plastic layer coated with a fireproofing material and which are sized to seal a ceiling access opening. In some embodiments a closure member constructed of insulating material is cooperatively and frictionally received within a frame formed of the same material to form an airtight seal therebetween.